

SUNDAY SERVICES. THE VERY FIRST. GOLDEN WEDDING.

Tribute Paid to Memories of Christian Women.

THE LATE MRS. AND MISS METZ

The Rev. E. P. Wise and the Rev. F. H. Simpson Speak in Eloquent Praise of the Christian Characters of Two Earnest Church Members—Communion Services at the Presbyterian Church.

Impressive services in memory of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Metz and Miss Ada Metz were held at the Christian church Sunday morning. The crowded church was indicative of the widespread sorrow felt for the loss of those who had been so long faithful and serving members of the church. The music by the choir and male chorus was suitable for the occasion. The male chorus sang, "Across the Sea," and "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The hymns, "Jesus I Will Trust Thee," and "Home of the Soul," were sung by the choir. Both these hymns were favorites of both Mrs. and Miss Metz.

The Rev. O. P. Wise, of Somerset, Pa., formerly pastor of the Christian church, paid an eloquent tribute to the memory of Mrs. and Miss Metz. He said that these two saintly women lived virtuous and noble lives, of humble and modest worth; that, although both had been great sufferers for many years they had borne their sufferings uncomplainingly. He spoke in eloquent praise of their high christian characters.

The Rev. F. H. Simpson, the present pastor, made a brief address. He said that as both Mrs. and Miss Metz had been frail and weak in body during the time he had known them, yet it seemed to him that out of their weakness came strength; they were great, but their greatness was in their greatness of service.

The Rev. C. C. Smith, of Cincinnati, who was to have been present was unable to come on account of illness. Many flowers were brought to the altar by friends of the deceased.

At the Presbyterian church communion services were held Sunday morning and a number of new members admitted to the church. The services were interesting and impressive. This being the week of prayer, services will be held every evening except Saturday.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN.

And What May Happen as the Assembly Grows Older.

The proposal to make two separate townships of Perry will never reach the bill stage, it is thought. Representative Metzger has declined to have connection with the matter unless it can be brought to him in a tangible bill, framed and approved by authorities capable of judging of its legality.

If no one else does, Mr. Metzger will introduce a bill to make more severe the penalty for burglary.

The only bill which Mr. Metzger will draw and present himself, as matters now stand, is that to abolish the office of township supervisor and provide for the appointment of a road commissioner for Stark county.

Representative Pollock may present bills in the interest of labor and the Massillon state hospital. He is to have conferences with labor leaders, and conferences with state hospital authorities he already has had.

RICH SECTION FOREMAN.

His Estate Valued at Thirty Thousand Dollars.

Canton, Jan. 6.—Philip Yoder, aged seventy-two years, died as a retired section foreman of the Pennsylvania Railway Company at Louisville, this county. It was thought that he had little property, but developments show that he left an estate of more than $30,000, some of which has been hoarded for many years. J. C. Klingner, of Alliance, was named as administrator of the Yoder estate. He found among Yoder's effects a letter in which there was a key to a box in the Fidelity Safety Deposit Company, of Chicago. When the box for which the key was intended was opened some $16,000 in money was found. Of this sum $11,000 was in paper money, consisting of $100 notes in a large wallet. The other $5,000 was found in large, heavy canvas belt and consisted of $20 gold pieces. The notes were so worn with age that many of them crumbled when picked up. The deceased was also possessed of some real estate in Maximo and Alliance.

Chas. H. King Tells About Literary Societies.

ANOTHER SHY AT DR. MOFFITT.

Characterizes the Lyceum and Philo Hall as Grandchildren in the Matter of Literary Research—Personal Mention of Old-Time Residents of Tuscarawas Township.

An old friend of mine recently sent me a copy of The Independent containing the address delivered at the last reunion of the Myers school by Dr. M. M. Moffitt. I taught my first school there in the winter of 1837-8, and have always been greatly interested in the welfare of that district. The doctor becomes quite eloquent when he gets to that "far-famed Lyceum and Philo Hall," and I suppose he is justified in doing so. I left there years before that society was organized, and know but little about it. The doctor says that "as far as known, it was one of the first associations of literary research organized in this part of the state." By using the word "organized," he may be correct. But many years prior to Philo Hall there was a debating and social gathering (unorganized) in that district. In the winter of 1837-8, Nathan Eldredge, Moses Manrow, Samuel Krider, the three directors of the district, John Crooks, Henry Van Dorsen and Henry Ritter, and myself, agreed to start a "debating and social society," meetings to be held once a week at private houses. The first meeting was held at Henry Van Dorsen's, on the "company farm," east of the school house, and a few of the near neighbors were on hand to see the fun. Among those present were old Mr. Putt, a revolutionary soldier. Nathan Eldredge and Henry Van Dorsen had the affirmative side, and Samuel Krider and I were put on the negative. With the exception of Mr. Eldredge, none of us had even so much as heard a debate. John Crooks, Henry Ritter and John Erbengast were the judges, and sat on a bench behind the long dining table, with a single candle before them, the fireplace furnishing the balance of the light. I do not remember the question debated. While Krider was speaking I noticed that his knees kept bumping together. When my turn to speak came, I placed my chair between me and the table, and grabbed the top of it with both hands to support myself. After speaking a few minutes, the chair began to rattle on the floor, and to do my best I could not hold it still. The judges decided in favor of the affirmative, Krider and I being badly beaten. This was probably the first public debate ever held in western Stark county.

The next week we met at Henry Ritter's house, near Pigeon Run. There was a large attendance, including half a dozen or more women, who brought their knitting with them, and while they were listening to the debaters made their fingers and knitting needles go faster than their granddaughters can now in thumping the piano.

During the winter we had, at some time or other, nearly every man in the district at our meetings, and many from adjoining districts. We met early, gossiped a little, selected judges from those present, had two debaters to a side, spoke alternately two rounds, with the time of each limited to fifteen minutes. After the debate closed we would agree on the next place of meeting, select the subject for discussion, choose the speakers, and generally dispersed before 9 o'clock.

Nathan Eldredge was by far the best debater; Moses Manrow was a natural born orator; John Bretz could say the most to the point with the fewest words and in the shortest time; James Boreland was a pleasant speaker and a cool reasoner; Seth Chase was probably the best read man among us; John Erbengast became a good debater; John Shilling was the most religious; Jonathan Foster was very eccentric, a good talker and quite a mimic; Samuel Krider was the best student, studied the question [the most, and became one of the best debaters. He and I were the most regular attendants.

The Lyceum and Philo Hall, instead of being the parents of literary research were but the grandchildren.

A REVELATION.

When One Goes for Months Without Getting a Good Night's Sleep—Release is Sweet.

Take away sound refreshing sleep and rob nature of its most necessary requirement—feeding and building up time, that's why so many people find their standard of strength when they cannot sleep well—none symptom after another creeps in and serious ailments follow, that is what makes so many feel and look older than they are. The perfecting of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills is a revelation to this kind. Mrs. W. F. Breed, of No. 29 Grant street, Massillon, Ohio, says: "It was a case of inability to sleep as the result of extreme nervousness. This naturally meant fatigue, lack of energy. I knew of Dr. Chase's Nerve Pills and got some at E. S. Craig's Drug Store, No. 9 South Erie street, and can honestly say they are fine. I find the nerves steady again my natural sleep and the general strength and energy good."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase, Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D. are on every package.

DRESS AND FASHION

MOODES WHICH THE OPENING YEAR FINDS FIRMLY ESTABLISHED.

Individuality the keynote of Chic. The Pelisses, Sacks, Tippets, Scarfs and Jewels of the Empire—Gowns and Accessories.

The words dress and fashion are hardly any longer synonymous. Slowly have they been drawing apart till dress has come to mean the truest chic, the study of individual characteristics and their fitting expression, while fashion signifies the following of a style because it is the fashion, without regard to its becomingness or suitability. Individuality is the keynote of the last word in the world of dress.

Carefully has fashion been picking her footsteps along the grassy paths

of bygone history, stopping here and there to call a way-side flim, till now she has arisen, a new creature, out of the ashes of the past.

Many periods have gone to form this rejuvenated goddess as we know her today. From the courts of Louis XV. and Louis XVI. come the long coats with their deftly embroidered waistcoats framed by a rich setting of fur, which Paris is delighting in honor; the rich brocades and the long stomacher fronted bodices, accompanied by skirts showing a gradually increasing fullness on the hips, which are already casting their shadows before them.

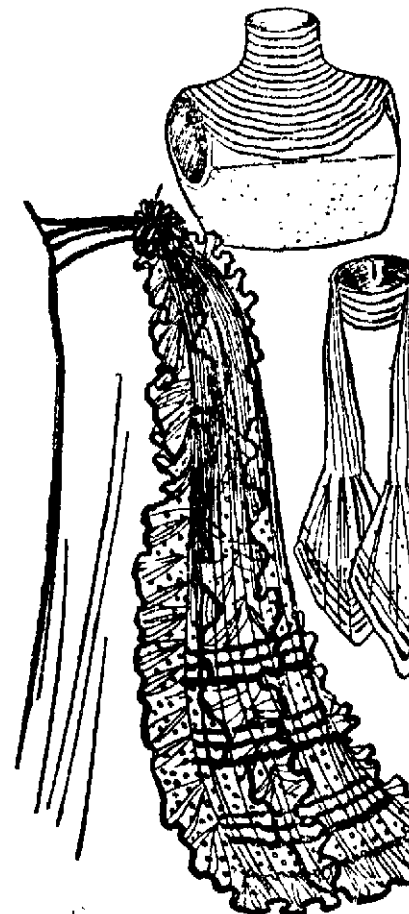

The taste of Marie Antoinette lives again in the elbow sleeves with fine lace ruffles, the still finer fichus and the newest style of hairdressing. But it is from the time of the first empire that we are drawing our happiest inspirations. Josephine, whatever other virtues she may have been possessed of, had an unerring instinct for dress, and under her guidance the fashions of that date were the prettiest of the whole of the past century.

The present straight fronted figures are but an adaptation of the graceful outlines which the true empire gown displayed, the classic figure of a well built woman as nature made her. The pelisses and sacks, the tippets and spencers, the graceful scarfs, the profusion of jewelry, are but so many items culled from this fascinating period, when dress was never alike for two weeks together.

The elegant long sacks which are the most chic wear have, however, by no means overwhelmed the short coats and boleros, and these still find much favor.

Velvet plays the luxurious part predicted for it early in the autumn, together with furs.

In evening gowns there are much richness and exquisite taste displayed. Nets and chiffons of various descriptions rank among the most useful and attractive of evening gowns. The first cut shows a lovely evening gown in cream chiffon elaborately embroidered in pastel blue and gold, the second figure being a silk ring spotted sash of black net, filled all around and run with black velvet ribbon, together with other dainty accessories of obvious purpose, appears in the second cut.

DAINTY ACCESSORIES.

SMART MILLINERY.

Forerunners of the New Headgear, Light and Shaggy Pelis.

From the milliners come the first trustworthy news of what the winter headgear is to be and also something of what gowns and wraps are to be like, allowing, of course, for future possibilities in later developments.

Shaggy materials are the smart novelties for hatmaking, and these are as light as the feather blown by the wind. White and black combinations as well as all white remain the keynote to winter modishness, and it is especially attractive in these new fabrics. We are also to enter upon a season of felt hats, but no longer smooth of surface, but shaggy also and long haired.

Another variety, extremely smart, by the way, has a soft wooliness of finish, which one may be sure is the correct thing to select, and decidedly chic is it. In regard to shape the low, broad lines are continued. Broad toques and low hats with brims are still to remain in favor, which is good news, as they have proved so very becoming and the manner of wearing them has been brought by practice to perfection.

The next point of interest is to learn with what hats are to be trimmed, and no one will regret to hear that feathers are still in vogue, but instead of the present manner of posing them feathers go very decidedly to the back of the hat rather than forward.

Birds are to be also very modish, but let us hope they will be of artificial construction; parrots are among the number. Crowns entirely of feathers are new, as are hats made wholly of feathers, both of which models were thought chic last winter, partly because they were then rather uncommon.

For dressy hats we are to count on the whole hat being made of Irish lace

THE FIRST OF THE COMING HEADGEAR. and trimmed with velvet and feathers. This style is one of decided distinction.

Venice lace will also be seen in its finest quality upon sides and top of hat crowns, the rest of the hat of velvet.

Perhaps nothing will be found prettier to wear with tailor made gowns than hats of tulle and broad black and white as in colors. They make up charmingly and are easily turned into the most effective lines.

This closing word has to do with colors, but so far there is no surprise or novelty. Fawns are in all shades, from dark to light grays, and greens, blues, together with that old style mixture of green and blue which we were very fond of years ago, are revived. It is a most harmonious blending as well as a most wearable one, answering so well as a quiet contrast to neutral colored cloth gowns and suits.

The cut shows a toque of folds of rough white cloth trimmed with a black cock plume tipped with white and a velvet rosette with rhinestone ornament, also a round hat of fawn colored felt trimmed with folds of brown velvet and long brown and white quills.—Vogue.

Running Water and Rough Hands.

The season of chapped hands is not far away, and it is therefore timely to suggest that the discomforts arising from this source can be almost entirely avoided. All that is needed is that the hands should be thoroughly rinsed in running water after they have been washed with soap. The hands, indeed, should never be washed in still water. This practice, so common as to be almost universal, is chiefly responsible for the roughening of the hands and for producing the uncomfortable so called chapped condition of these useful members, a condition directly resultant from the alkali remaining in the water from the soap. To prevent this the hand washing should be accomplished under a running faucet, which is also, like the rain or shower bath, much more wholesome as well as more tidy than any other plan.

Fashion's Echoes.

Silver tissue is being much used as a background for the fine laces and embroideries of the season.

Parisian makers are turning out picturesque ermine bordered tippets, large collars and huge muffs of velvet.

Another trimming to be much used on mousseline, chiffon crape and other soft materials is the pompadour ribbon, which comes in the daintiest colorings and designs.

The skirt flare with the sectional flounce, having the flounce portions joined either smoothly or in tuck hems and outlined with stitching or trimming, will undoubtedly continue in popularity throughout the winter.

Many elegant Frenchwomen are adopting the apron for use in the country or for any form of light work. They are copying those aprons shown in the morning costumes of the great ladies of the court of Louis XIV., says the New York Herald.

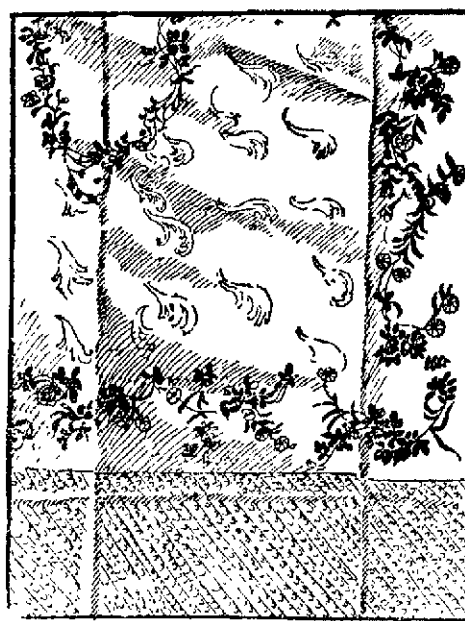

The American woman affects the short riding coat, but the English woman, who is authority on matters equestrian, if in no other sartorial province, considers the long coat skirt correct. She wears a double breasted, tight fitting coat with long skirts.

LATEST BED LINEN.

EVERYTHING IS READY MADE AND VERY ELABORATE.

The New Sheets Are Things of Wonder to Old Fashioned Housekeepers—Lace Trimmed Pillowcases, Charming Satin Finish Spreads.

Plain and durable was the bed linen in the days when our sweet grandmothers were girls. The snowy piles of linen which stocked the linen closet in those days were handmade from the beginning to the end. Today all this is changed. Bed linen is elaborate and correspondingly expensive. Spreads are works of art, and the new sheets, with their exquisitely embroidered designs, are things of wonder to the old fashioned housekeeper. Bed linen is now bought ready made almost exclusively. Little sheeting, whether cotton or linen, is sold by the yard.

SATIN FINISH MARSEILLE SPREAD.

So says a writer in the Household, who describes and illustrates some pleasing fancies in this line.

Linen sheets now come as high as $30 for a single sheet. A sheet of this sort is not only elaborately hand embroidered, but shows an intricate drawnwork design. Much less expensive linen sheets are also hand embroidered and lace trimmed. Sheets with the lace introduced as a band of insertion just above the hemstitched border are much used for the top sheet. The lower sheet is always of plain linen. Many of the new sheets have hand embroidered, scalloped borders, and fancy hemstitching is in fashion.

The correct hem for a straight border is two and a half inches deep. If the hem is finished with a scalloped edge, it is a trifle narrower, measuring two inches. Even the inexpensive ready made cotton sheets have just above the hemstitching a narrow insertion of embroidery, which gives a pretty finish.

The finer sheets of linen have an embroidered monogram worked on the sheet in the center just below the hem. The monogram varies in size and design according to the individual taste of the purchaser. For a monogram letters 2 to 2½ inches high are good style, while if a single letter is used it is much larger. A single block letter from 3½ to 4 inches looks well on a sheet.

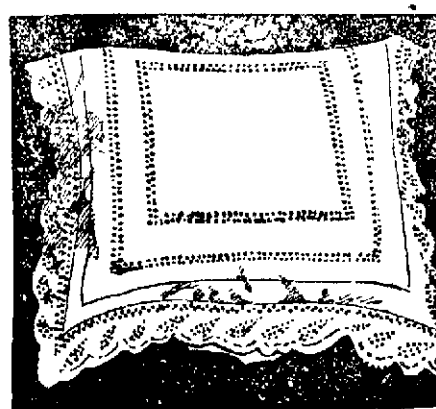

All the finer sheets nowadays are sold with pillowcases to match. It is really only at night that the perfectly plain pillowcase puts in an appearance. When the pillow is to be used, then the plain pillowcase is slipped over it.

During the daytime on the correctly dressed bed the pillowcases should show the same embroidered design, drawnwork or lace trimming, as the top sheet.

Both the square and oblong pillowcases are used. Frequently the square lace trimmed pillowcase which opens at the back will have a monogram embroidered on the center.

Bedspreeds were never more lovely than now. The white linen spreads heavily embroidered in white, with insertions of drawnwork and a hand embroidered, scalloped border, are in exquisite taste. They have a four inch hem. Other beautiful all white spreads show an applique of lace with the spread cut away beneath the lace design.

Among the novelty spreads just now in vogue are those of satin finish marseilles, with a printed floral design in colors. These spreads launder beautifully. The color design is introduced as a wreath in the center of the spread and as an inner border.

Colored marseilles spreads with a satin finish are pretty for everyday use and are inexpensive. They come combined with white in attractive shades of pink, blue and yellow.

Household Hints.

Brolled meats should be served as soon as cooked.

Grapefruit as a substitute for punch between two meat courses at dinner will prove a satisfaction as well as a surprise.

An excellent way of putting broken handled knives is to fill the old socket with rosin powder and, having heated the steel end of the blade, to force it into the rosin and hold it there until cool, when it will be found firmly to adhere to its proper position.

BRICKS WITHOUT STRAW.

More than a thousand years ago—
There was a man I used to know
May seem strange, but 'twill so it's so
After I tell you the reason why—
Worked in a brickyard, same as you
And all of us have to do.
Mixed in the trouble and worry and strife,
The myth and the other things of life;
Stirred in the hopes and the pains and fears,
Knocked the mud with his sweat and his tears,
Hugged most mass that ever you saw,
"Poor brick!" said the man, "but I have no straw!"

Up to his knees in the mire pit,
A jenny's way, but a giant's grit;
His back was a chain of throbbing aches,
Lifting the mold with his earthen cakes;
Elbows rusty as hinges of steel,
Knees so lame he could hardly kneel;
Mud so stiff it would clog a plow
And couldn't be stirred with a wheel now;
Nights as short as the days were long;
Nothing seemed right, but everything wrong.
"Best I can do," said the man; "but, pshaw,
You can't make brick when you have no straw!"

Taskmasters pitiless lashed the man,
"Can't!" sobbed Weakness, but Courage cried,
"Can!"
"Don't!" said Despair, but Duty cried, "Do!"
"All right," said the man, "I'll worry her through!"
Can't do much, and I reckon you'll see Brick won't be just what they ought to be;
Ain't nigh so good as I know I could make
If I just had straw; but you'll have to take
The best I can do for the work's own sake."

He finished his tale of brick and then Went home to rest, and one son of men Looked on his perfect work and saw
He'd have spoiled the brick had he put in straw.

GREYHOUNDS.

They Are the Fleetest of All Four Footed Animals.

Comparatively few people realize of what remarkable speed dogs are capable. Some remarkable statistics in regard to this have been gathered by M. Dusolier, a French scientist.

After pointing out the marvelous endurance shown by little fox terriers who follow their masters patiently for hours while the latter are riding on bicycles or in carriages, he says that even greater endurance is shown by certain wild animals that are akin to dogs.

Thus the wolf can run between 50 and 60 miles in one night, and an arctic fox can do quite as well, if not better.

Nansen met one of these foxes on the ice at a point more than 70 miles north-west of the Samukov territory, which is 480 miles from the Asiatic coast. Eskimo and Siberian dogs can travel 45 miles on the ice in five hours, and there is one case on record in which a team of Eskimo dogs traveled 6½ miles in 28 minutes.

According to M. Dusolier, the speed of the shepherd dogs and those used in hunting ranges from 10 to 15 yards a second. English setters and pointers hunt at the rate of 18 to 19 miles an hour, and they can maintain this speed for at least two hours.

Foxhounds are extraordinarily swift, as is proved by the fact that a dog of this breed once beat a thoroughbred horse, covering four miles in 6½ minutes, which was at the rate of nearly 18 yards a second.

Greyhounds are the swiftest of all four footed creatures, and their speed may be regarded as equal to that of carrier pigeons. English greyhounds, which are carefully selected and which are used for coursing, are able to cover at full gallop a space between 18 and 23 yards every second.

How great an achievement this is may be judged from the fact that a thoroughbred horse rarely if ever exceeds 19 yards. Moreover, it is said that a hare at its greatest speed never goes faster than at the rate of 18 yards.

These interesting statistics are exciting much comment among sportsmen and other lovers of dogs, and the opinion is unanimous that M. Dusolier has fully proved the right of the greyhound to rank as the swiftest of the quadrupeds. Express engines only surpass them.—London Mail.

Tentative Interment.

A poor Scotchwoman lay dying, and her husband sat by her bedside. After a time the wife took her husband's hand and said:

"John, we're goin' to part. I have been a gude wife to ye, haven't I?"

John thought a moment.

"Well, just middling like, Jenny, ye know," anxious not to say too much.

Again the wife spoke.

"John," she said faintly, "ye maun promise to bury me in the auld kirkyard at Stravon beside my mither. I could na rest in peace among unco' folk in the dirt and smoke o' Glasgie."

"Weel, weel, Jenny, my woman," said John soothingly, "we'll just try ye in Glasgie first, an' gin ye dinna be quiet we'll try ye in Stravon."—Spare Moments.

He Didn't Complain.

Young Wife—This talk about men being so impatient when a woman is getting ready to go anywhere is all nonsense.

Friend—Doesn't your husband complain at all?

Young Wife—No, indeed! Why, last evening I couldn't find my gloves and had a long hunt for half a dozen other things, and yet when I was finally dressed and went down stairs to my husband there he was by the fire reading and smoking as calmly as if I wasn't half an hour late.

Friend—Well, I declare! Where were you going?

Young Wife—To prayer meeting.—New York Weekly.

As She Saw It.

Mrs. Kleener—What is the matter with you this evening, John, that you ain't smoking?

Mr. Kleener—The doctor says I mustn't. He says I must stop smoking or die.

Mrs. Kleener—Oh, I'm so glad! You won't be wanting up my curtains any more, will you? Boston Transcript.

IN QUEEN ANNE STYLE.

Handsome Residence For a Small Country Town—Cost, $3,800.
[Copyright, 1901, by T. H. Venn, 41 West Twenty-fourth street, New York.]

One of the most popular styles of dwelling house is the Queen Anne. While the designs shown herewith do not exactly provide for a regular Queen Anne residence, yet they contain many of the principal features that have won for this style of edifice its deserved popularity. The main idea throughout is to insure the comfort and convenience of the householder. The exterior of the dwelling makes this fact patent, for the octagonal tower and arched veranda give a very comfortable and homelike tone to the place. It is most suitable for a small country town.

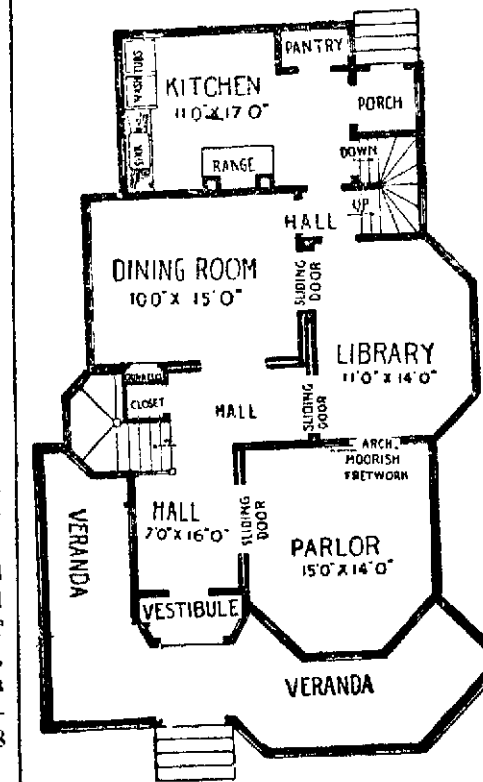

The plans are for a twelve room residence, including a bathroom. On the ground floor to the right of the hall is the parlor, entered by sliding doors. The parlor is connected with the library by an archway with a Moorish fretwork, to be draped with portieres. The library has a large bay window front and two sliding doors, one shutting off the hall, the other the dining room.

The dining room also connects with the hall. Indeed one of the features of the house is that all the rooms on the first floor can be entered directly from the hall without having to pass through other rooms. A large north window gives light to the dining room, which is a comfortable, well appointed apartment. It is so arranged that the odors of the cooking can be kept from it, for one has to pass through a small hall to reach the kitchen. The servants' stairs, another good point in this plan, run from this minor hall.

The kitchen shows that the comfort of the servants is not forgotten. The sink is an extra large one with two drain boards and washbuts. There are also a pantry and a porch, both having windows. The cellar stairs lead from the kitchen.

Returning to the main hall, there is a feature which should not be overlooked, for the stairs have been planned in such a way that a commodious store closet can be built beneath them. The stair landing is octagonal, with windows on all sides.

On the second floor are three large rooms and a small one. All of these are provided with closets. At the end of the passage is a large bathroom divided into two sections and containing two closets. The plumbing should be open work, with nickel plated finishing.

The attic is divided into three large chambers, with closets, all of which can be used as sleeping rooms or store chambers, as desired.

The foundation of the house is of red brick, and the entire exterior covering is of silver gray shingles, with white pine beveled corner boards. The casings, sashes and trimmings are sienna stained, while the floor and ceiling of the veranda are oiled.

The shelves of the closets and pantry are of whitewood, the treads and risers of the stairs of yellow pine, the rails, newels and balustrades of cherry and all other inside woodwork of North Carolina pine.

Dimensions.—Front, 23 feet; side, 47 feet; height of floors, cellar, 7 feet; first floor, 10 feet; second floor, 9 feet 6 inches; attic, 8 feet. Cost to build, without boiler, $3,800.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure Backache, Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells, when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney troubles," writes Mrs. Phoebe Cleary, of Peterson, Ia., "and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitter wholly cured me, and, although 78 years old, I am now able to do all my housework." It overcomes Constipation, improves Appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at Baltzly's drug store.

It Girdles the Globe.

The fame of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, as the best in the world, extends round the earth. It's the one perfect healer of Cuts, Corns, Burns, Bruises, Sores, Scalds, Boils, Ulcers, Felons, Aches, Pains and all Skin Eruptions. Only infallible Pile cure. 25c a box at Baltzly's.

Thousands Sent Into Exile.

Every year a large number of poor sufferers whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. Don't be an exile when Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption will cure you at home. It's the most infallible medicine for Coughs, Colds, and all Throat and Lung diseases on earth. The first dose brings relief. Astounding cures result from persistent use. Trial bottles free at Z. T. Baltzly's. Price 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

Blown to Atoms.

The old idea that the body sometimes needs a powerful, drastic, purgative pill has been exploded: for Dr. King's New Life Pills, which are perfectly harmless, gently stimulate liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system and absolutely cure Constipation and Sick Headache. Only 25c at Baltzly's drug store.

A Prominent Chicago Woman Speaks.

Prof. Roxa Tyler, of Chicago, Vice President Illinois Woman's Alliance, in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, says: "I suffered with a severe cold this winter which threatened to run into pneumonia. I tried different remedies, but I seemed to grow worse and the medicine upset my stomach. A friend advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and I found it was pleasant to take and it relieved me at once. I am now entirely recovered, saved a doctor's bill, time and suffering, and I will never be without this splendid medicine again." For sale by E. S. Craig, Z. T. Baltzly and Rice & Snyder.

Nerve Slavery

It is present-day conditions—heaping burdens of work upon the nervous system that tells the story—premature breaking up of health.

It tells why so many men and women, who so far as age is concerned, should be in the prime of health, find themselves letting go of the strength, the power, the vitality they once possessed. It is because that great motor power of the body, nerve force, is impaired. Neither will the heart, the brain, the liver, the kidneys, the stomach act right without their proper nerve force supply. Let any organ be lacking in this essential and troubles begin—some of them are:

Throbbing, palpitating heart.
Sleepless nights.
Sudden startings.
Morning languor.
Brain fog.
Inability to work or think.
Exhaustion on exertion.
Flagging appetite.
Digestion slow.
Feeling heavy.
Easily excited, nervous, irritable.
Strength fails.
Loss of flesh and muscular power.
Settled melancholia.

The above is the genuine package of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills, are sold by dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

The secretary of agriculture has expressed the belief that within a few years Puerto Rico could be made to produce half the coffee used in the United States, which is a billion pounds a year, valued at $70,000,000.
The other half, he believes, could be obtained in Hawaii and the Philippines. This is one of many ways in which our new possessions are destined to become useful.

Official statistics show that 302,848
emigrants left the United Kingdom for places outside of Europe during 1901, an increase of 4287, as compared with the figures of the previous year.
As usual the United States was the top sea for the great majority of them, this country having received 194,888
and British North America 43,013.
The figures in the former case show an increase of 5,497, and in the latter a decrease of 6,991.

The most casual review of recent burglaries shows the reasonableness of the stand taken by Representative Williams, of Mahoning county, who has announced an intention to introduce a bill in the legislature making it equal to second degree murder for a burglar to enter an occupied dwelling. Mr. Williams believes that a burglar who enters a house will commit murder when his liberty is at stake and that the frequency of this class of cases demands some adequate punishment for the crime. His idea is certainly entitled to serious consideration.

The New York Sun shows its appreciation of the well known Ohio statu-sman in the following paragraph: "If the continuation of Joseph Benson Foraker and Marcus Alonzo Hanna
as senators from Ohio depends upon the equal division between them of the Ohio legislature, we trust that each will keep the half that he has got. Foraker today stands for the underlying American sentiment to a degree surpassed by no man, and Hanna, a younger man in the foremost ranks of public life, is one of the most valuable forces known to our politics. The one of them who would strike at the other deserves to be struck himself."

The message of Governor Nash is a business document formulated by a practical business man and it is to be expected that his various recommendations will be put into effect as soon as possible. Briefly, the important points in the governor's message concern an immediate reduction in the state levy, publicity in the affairs of corporations, the making of suitable appropriations for the national guard, the immediate payment of existing deficiencies and the strictest economy in the conduct of the state's affairs.
The last recommendation should have particular force as coming from one whose management of the state's finances has been characterized by the best of judgment and business methods.

THE NEW SHIPPING BILL.

The shipping bill just presented by Senator Frye first provides for contracts for carrying our mails to foreign countries by amending the existing law which was passed in 1891, partially restoring the rates as it passed the Senate, and increasing the tonnage requirements to meet the conditions of the present. Experience for ten years under the present law, proves conclusively that the rates fixed by the House at that time, which out down those in the Senate bill, are insufficient and that the law, by reason of reducing the rates, has been of little or no effect.

This postal law of 1891, as amended,
will require the highest class ships, of speed from fourteen to twenty knots, to be constructed to the satisfaction of the navy department, to be capable of becoming cruisers in time of war, to be officered by Americans, manned by crews from one-quarter to one-half Americans, to carry postal messengers and furnish ample room for mails, to take one apprentice for every thousand tons burden, in seamanship or engineering--indeed, it will contain all the requirements of the old law. Regular lines alone build up trade, and are the first and most important necessity in reviving our merchant marine.

The bill then provides for a mileage bounty for all ships, fast or slow, sail or steam, sailing from ports of the United States, to and from ports of foreign countries, at the rate of one cent a ton a mile for each one hundred miles sailed. It is believed that this rate will equalize the conditions between our ships outside the mail contracts and those of Great Britain. Such vessels are not affected by subsidies paid by that country and the only difference to be equalized is the lower cost of the ships built in England, the lower wages paid her sailors, and the cheaper living on board ship. These vessels to be entitled to the bounty must be all class A1, and are subject to the requirements touching those receiving postal contracts, except they are not required to be built so as to be converted readily into cruisers, nor to have so high rating, nor to be equally high powered.

The bill then provides for a bounty to be paid to fishing vessels engaged in the deep-sea fisheries and a small bounty to American sailors so engaged, this to encourage the training of seamen.

The bill contains a few clauses giving power to the President and secretary of the treasury to establish the necessary rules for its proper execution. It admits no foreign built ships to an American register. It provides for no contracts other than those for the carrying of the mails. It leaves to Congress the power to amend it at any time.

AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Death Comes to Harry J.
Meyers Wednesday.

BODY TO BE TAKEN TO AKRON.

A Brief Service Will be Conducted by the Lodge of Elks Thursday Afternoon—Final Services Will be Held at Akron—Was 25 Years Old and Unmarried.

An illness of three months, beginning with malaria and resulting in complications affecting the heart, terminated in the death of Harry J.
Meyers, at his home at 132 East Tremont street, at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. Funeral services will be conducted at the residence at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon by Massillon lodge, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, of which the deceased was a member. The body will be taken to Akron, the former home of Mr. Meyers, Thursday afternoon, and final services will be held in St. Vincent's Catholic church, at that place,
the Rev. Dr. Murr officiating, Saturday morning.

Harry Meyers was 25 years old, and was a native of Akron. He was unmarried, and an only child. His widowed mother survives him. Mr.
Meyers came to Massillon seven years ago, shortly after his graduation from a school of pharmacy, to take a position in the store of Z. T. Baltzly, in whose employ he had continued ever since. He established a reputation for himself equalled by few pharmacists in the state, there being on record not a single mistake or inaccuracy in the filling of prescriptions or the general compounding of drugs chargeable to him.

In addition to having charge of the pharmacy, Mr. Meyers also was at the head of the book department of the Baltzly store. "Here," remarked Mr.
Baltzly, today, "he was a regular cyclopedist. He knew just what was contained between the covers of every book, knew because he had read them
all. No new books left the press that he did not know all about before they reached the local market. He possessed a most wonderfully quick and retentive memory. His judgment in all matters was good, and he would doubtless have developed into a business man of the first order."

Mr. Meyers was also a member of several societies other than the Elks.
He carried life insurance in the Pathfinders Society and in the Mutual Life Company.

GRAND JUROR'S SUDDEN DEATH.

John B. Blackford Succumbs to Heart Disease.

JURY ADJOURNS TILL MONDAY.

Louis B. Tuttle, a Workhouse Prisoner, Escapes from the Institution—Sent from Warren to Serve Twelve Months.

Canton, Jan. 8.—The work of the grand jury came to a halt by the sudden death of Juror John B. Blackford, of Marlboro. Juror Blackford
died in his room at the Hotel Conrad at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.
Heart disease was assigned as the immediate cause of his death, the malady having been superinduced by bowel trouble. He became ill about 8 o'clock Tuesday evening and a physician who was called remained with him for some hours. S. S. Newhouse, of New Baltimore, a brother-in-law,
and also a member of the grand jury, was rooming with Mr. Blackford and was with him during the night. The deceased was 54 years of age, a veteran of the civil war and a member of the G. A. R., Maccabees, and Jr. O.
U. A. M. The grand jury adjourned until next Monday morning out of respect to the deceased.

Louis B. Tuttle, a prisoner at the county workhouse, who was sent there for twelve months from Warren, charged with attempting to marry a young woman there, when he had a wife living in Pittsburg, escaped from the institution Monday afternoon about 3 o'clock. Tuttle, while engaged in sweeping the beams in the brush shop, discovered that one of the bolts holding the bars on the skylight had become loose and with little effort succeeded in taking it out. It took him but a moment to crawl upon the roof and from there to the wall and liberty.
His absence was not noticed until evening, when the guards discovered that there was one man missing.

The regular meeting of the Canton board of health was held Tuesday evening. Health Officer Marchand reported that there were thirty-two deaths in the city during the month of December. The greater part of the deaths were of people past twenty-one years of age. City Physician Brant prefaced his report with a few remarks concerning the health of the poor people who come under his notice. He said that he had no poor people sick with diphtheria or scarlet fever at the present time, which condition, he said, was remarkable.

The infirmary directors held a meeting at the infirmary Monday and reorganized the board. Director Howenstein retired and was succeeded by Thomas Miller, of Canton. William Hardgrove was elected president of the board and Andrew Reese secretary. Some business was transacted by the new board, after the affairs of the old one had been settled up. The employees of the infirmary and the other directors made Mr. Howenstein a present of a beautiful rocking chair upon his retirement. He expressed his gratitude to the donors.

A THIEF GETS $375.

T. B. Arnold, formerly landlord of the Hotel Conrad, who rooms in East Main street, has never thought it necessary to lock his doors. Today, he says, he discovered that a wallet containing notes and money aggregating $375 is missing from his room. Somebody familiar with his habits, he thinks, slipped into the room during his absence and stole the wallet. Mr.
Arnold states that he has stopped payment on all the papers. He has a suspicion as to who committed the theft, and is hopeful that he will regain possession of his property.

At first Mr. Arnold thought that he was a victim of a practical joke, as his friends have often cautioned him against leaving his room unlocked, but the continued absence of his property has convinced him that the wallet was taken by a thief. The matter has not been reported to the police.
Mr. Arnold is now in the employ of
S. F. Wefler.

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT.

Mr. Young Says New Line Will Surely be Built.

O. E. Young, who has represented
the Northern Ohio Traction Company, in all of its local negotiations, stated
positively Tuesday, that the Canton, Massillon & Akron railway will be built. Its affairs, he said, are in nowise affected by the embarrassments of the Northern Ohio Company.

Michael Sanor, aged 19, was struck by a Pennsylvania train between Sebring and Alliance, Saturday night, and instantly killed. It is supposed the accident occurred about 11 o'clock, but the body was not discovered until 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

Andrew Grossman, aged 50 years, employed as an engineer on the Pennsylvania lines, was killed on Monday morning at Millbrook coal chute, near Wooster. He was under his engine and it is supposed that in getting out he was struck by a westbound express.

A sudden affliction came over J. G.

he washed his face, and when called could not come, as sight had left him.

At its meeting on Monday night, the Alliance city council passed a resolu-

The quarantine of the James W.
Carnes residence on East Oak street, where Joseph Nicholas had been ill with smallpox, was lifted at 12 o'clock Sunday night. Health Officer Miller says that there is now no danger of the disease spreading further. He says there was no doubt but that the patient had genuine smallpox in a mild form.

William Henderson, now serving an eight year term in the penitentiary, assaulted a fellow prisoner one day last week, for which he was paddled, given a dose of the water treatment

the expiration of his eight-year term, in July, 1904, he will commence a life term, having been convicted for complicity in the murder of John Har-tong, at Greentown, in this county.

The climate and crop section of the United States weather bureau gives the following report of conditions in the state during the past month:
Generous rains first of month benefited wheat, which was generally covered with snow during most of cold period and sustained little or no injury; though small, weak and thin in most sections, its condition at close of December better than at end of previous month.

Letters were sent out on Tuesday recalling the invitations to the wedding of Miss Della Semler and Clement Zimmerman, prominent Akron young people, which was to have taken place today. After a conference of the parents Tuesday the invitations were cancelled. The announcement is made by the families that the reason for calling the marriage off lies in the fact that Zimmerman is a Catholic while Miss Semler is a Protestant.

HUMBERGERS' Are now Holding Their Great Mill End Sale of Dry Goods

It is still going on and will continue to go as long as Mr. Lockhart keeps sending us the great bargains that are coming every day.

The Lockhart "Mill End" sale is no flickering dream, unconsidered and incomplete. It is the true ideal of all sales. Its promises are specific. Its very object—that of selling the left-over lots at the mills and factories at any price they will bring—is within itself reasonable and just. No one is made to suffer and the people get the benefit.

We haven't time to quote prices. Seeing is believing. Come to the store and take time to look around.

Buy Your White Goods for Spring, it Will Pay You.

Business is the rub of life. Avarice grinds a man like emery. It takes a broad-minded merchant to give "Mill-End" sales at "Mill End" cost. The people have a perfect passion for this sale. They have a madness full of method. Great crowds are here daily and they are busied wholly about the "Mill-End" bargains every moment.

All are Urged to Come Saturday

on goods that you all want. These sales are a gift to each customer and they all seem to enjoy them, and are so well pleased that we have decided to adopt them, and will put them on whenever we can find the goods that we know will please our customers. We are the originators of the 15 minute sales in this city and will make them a leading feature of our business.

The Lockhart "Mill End" sale reaches down to the base. All objections have been scattered and defeated. We offer all the advantages to the people. The goods are of the best sort, the prices far below anything possible in any other way.

To make a "Mill End" sale successful, the merchant must have the trade, and the outlet we have it. Consequently we can take the large lots which usually go to the Jobbers.

Our Trade Gets the Benefit and that is what we are looking after and taking care of.

WASHINGTON

Each succeeding year brings changes in the diplomatic corps at Washington, and interest always surrounds the newcomers who are to make their first bows to society in the national capital. This season presents many strangers, for there have been numerous changes among the representatives of foreign governments.

Uncle Sam now has diplomatic relations with more than thirty countries, which are represented at the American capital by six embassies and thirty legations.

The nearest approach to the pomp and pageantry of a royal court, with its eunuchs and insidious rank, its stately ceremonials and dazzling splendor of gorgeous uniforms, is to be found in the assemblies of the diplomatic corps. In glitter, sparkle and color these levees present the most attractive of all the spectacular features of social life at the national capital.

Since the consummation of the Spanish-American war have installed the United States in the position of a world power the diplomatic contingent has been growing larger year by year until now representatives of nearly every land and clime are to be found in the foreign colony.

Embassadors are the bright particular stars of the diplomatic firmament, not only enjoying higher rank than plenipotentiaries, but are considered to represent more directly their sovereign or government.

There are only a few occasions each year, however, when the general public began his diplomatic career as an attaché of the Belgian legation at The Hague. From there he went to Madrid, then to Vienna, Berlin and Lisbon. In Rome Baron Moncheur represented his government as counselor, and in Luxembourg he was acting charge d'affaires. His next post was in Mexico as Belgium's minister.

While in Mexico Baron Moncheur met the daughter of Powell Clayton, American ambassador, Miss Charlotte Clayton, to whom he will be married on Jan. 15 in her father's home.

Baron Moncheur is a widower and one of the most genial and democratic men in the diplomatic service. His wife is Miss Holman, the half sister of Mr. Paderford of Washington. The baron has three children, little girls.

who are still in Mexico, but will come to Washington in the spring with their grandmother, with whom they will live after their arrival here.

Baron Moncheur has taken the house of the late Senator and Mrs. Davis, 1719 H street, and is furnishing it very handsomely for the reception of his bride. The minister and his bride will doubtless entertain extensively, as the baron enjoys society.

More than usual interest is manifested in the new Persian minister, who succeeds General Isaac Khan, one of the most popular members of the diplomatic corps. On his arrival in Washington he was entertained at a large dinner given in his honor by the Russian ambassador and Countess Cassini, thus receiving his introduction to social life under the most happy auspices.

Phya Akharaj, the Siamese envoy, comes from the land where the white elephant is a sacred creature, housed in a golden palace, fed and attended by awe-stricken domestics and served on bended knee. Nevertheless he displays all the outward signs of civilization. His diplomatic uniform is, according to the international fashion of the corps, a spiked coat, richly embroidered with fern leaves and branches laid on heavy bullion. He wears the regulation cocked hat of a lieutenant general and the white trousers of a hussar.

He is a young man to have attained his diplomatic rank, a native of the capital of his country, Bangkok, and a descendant of the ancient nobility. After completing his home education he was sent to Oxford, where he took both graduate and postgraduate degrees. He is a very wealthy man, both in his own right and in his expected inheritance. His previous official experience may first its eyes upon this show of gilt and feathers, the New Year's reception at the White House, the diplomatic reception and the diplomatic dinner being the special occasions on which the foreign contingent don their showiest court costumes and gold-laden uniforms. These gorgeous habiliments are in marked contrast to the simple costume worn by Uncle Sam's envoys at the courts of Europe. Our diplomats are restricted to the dress of an American citizen.

In the official plumage of the foreign diplomats, on the other hand, there is displayed nearly every color and hue. Diplomatic court dress embraces everything from splendid uniforms of gleaming crimson to snowy white, gleaming with gold embroideries and set off in many instances by fur trimmings and a wealth of decorations.

Among the notable additions to the diplomatic corps this season is Phya Akharaj, the first Siamese to be permanently accredited to Washington. Signor Edmondo Mayor des Planches, the Italian ambassador, who succeeds Baron Fava; Baron Ludovic Moncheur, the Belgian minister, and the new Persian minister also make their first appearance.

Signor Edmondo Mayor des Planches, the Italian ambassador, is not a son of the ancient or new nobility of his country. He is a well educated and thoroughly equipped business man and controls commercial houses at Florence, Milan, Genoa and Naples. In appearance he is a well preserved and dignified man of more than fifty years, wide-awake, full of business sagacity and very courteous. He is negotiating for one of the handsome residences in the exclusive quarter of the city. It is said that he has offered $120,000 for the residence of Bishop Hurst on Massachusetts avenue and Seventeenth street. Meanwhile he is quietly domiciled on one of the modest little side streets which run along the wall of the Visitation academy and is known as De Sales street. It is more than probable that his prospective purchase will be made in the name of the Italian government and that Italy will maintain its own ambassadorial home at the capital.

Baron Ludovic Moncheur, the new Belgian minister, comes to Washington from Mexico and succeeds Count Lichterfeld. He was born in Brussels and

TYPE OF THE BOWERY

CHUCK CONNORS, QUAINT CHARACTER OF NEW YORK'S SLUMS.

Social Leader in Chinese District of the Great City—His Annual Ball, Greer Product of the Metropolis, Meeting With Half Failure.

The annual ball of the Chuck Connors association has come and gone and nothing is left of it but a memory. And such a memory! The elite of society of New York's Chinatown and adjacent districts in the Bowery are of one opinion as to the success of Mr. Connors' latest contribution to the gaiety of life.

For several weeks prior to the great event huge posters decorated the walls of Chinese restaurants and Bowery saloons announcing the date of the event and bearing the admonition, "Bring your wads with you." And bring them they did, and spend them they did.

But all this was to be expected and was in the proper spirit, for when the association which takes its name from the redoubtable Chuck gives a ball the bars are let down, and everything goes, and goes to the limit, which is taken off. So much for Chuck Connors' ball.

Chuck Connors, by the way, is not a fictitious character, as some may suppose, but a living, breathing entity, very much in evidence in the everyday life of the peculiar district of New York in which is to be found the lotus and jettam of all the world, including China.

In a rather dingy Chinatown saloon Chuck Connors holds court. It is only a few doors away from the famous Bowery, in Pell street, the principal street of Chinatown. And here Chuck rules, for he is the unquestioned boss of his district.

Chuck's public career began as a newsboy and bootblack. He used to ply his trade at the New York end of the Brooklyn bridge and along Park row. As he accumulated years and muscle he became a prizefighter and later developed into an actor. These employments of callow days have now been relegated to the past, and it is as a saloon keeper and leader of the people that he is seen at his best.

Among newspaper men Chuck Connors is a great favorite, and his queer conceits and original humor have furnished material for many a story in Gotham's daily press. His intimate knowledge of the district in which he lives makes him an invaluable guide for shunning parties, and many such has Chuck conducted through the dark and crooked streets frequented by every form of poverty and vice which compose his livelihood.

Chuck's local fame was well established when as the original of E. W. Townsend's "Chinaman Fadden" he achieved almost national notoriety. He was also the hero of a series of Chinatown sketches written by William Norr for a New York paper. As an actor he succeeded the late Steve Brodie of bridge jumping fame in "On the Bowery" company, and it is said professional jealousy was responsible for the coarseness that later sprang up between them.

Friends of Mr. Connors say that he cherishes as his most precious possession a personal letter from Hall Caine, the author of "The Christian." How Chuck came to call Hall Caine "Me fren, de swell writer," came about in this manner: When Mr. Caine visited this country a year or so ago, he expressed a desire to see if he existed on the Bowery. The name of the man suggested as best qualified to show him around was naturally that of Chuck Connors.

The high position in the world of letters held by the author was unknown to Chuck, but had he known he would not have treated him with more consideration than any one of the hundreds of sightseers to whom each year he shows the depths of degradation of New York's most famous menagerie—Chinatown.

What interested Chuck most was that Hall Caine handed him a five dollar bill and promised a similar donation when their trip should be over and the light of a new day should send Caine to his hotel and Chuck to his room $10 richer for an experience that to him was of nightly occurrence.

"Chuck Connors' personality haunted me," said the author a few days later, "and again I returned to Chinatown to renew an acquaintance with one of the most original characters it has ever been my fortune to meet. We have nothing in England, not even the cosmopolitan, to equal the type. Chuck Connors will be one of my most pleasant recollections of America."

That is how Chuck Connors came to get a personal letter from the great Hall Caine.

FAMOUS ENGLISH ACTRESS.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell to Display Her Art in America.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the famous English actress, who with her London company is making her first American tour, is said to be a woman of extraordinary fascination. Enthusiastic, she loves to win applause and hates to be adversely criticised.

Mrs. Campbell is the widow of Patrick Campbell, an English army officer who was killed at Peterfontein in

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL.

April, 1900. Her courtship and marriage were romantic. She fell in love with young Pat Campbell of Stranraer, Ireland. Her father did not wish her to marry Campbell, and his parents also opposed the match. The lovers continued to meet, arranged an elopement and finally succeeded in getting married.

No actress in London theaters during the last decade has held more of public attention than Mrs. Patrick Campbell. She had been a provincial actress until in 1893 she appeared in the title role of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." Her success was immediate, her power and originality as an actress capturing the public, although the critics mercilessly attacked her.

It is significant of her individuality that Mrs. Campbell has never acquired what is known as a theatrical manner. Her acting is natural, sometimes to the point of ineffectiveness in parts which are not distinctly marked. Mrs. Campbell is an exquisite musician, and in Paris, where she was educated, she won a scholarship in music. Her voice is rich and ample, and she uses it with great skill.

The American tour of Mrs. Patrick Campbell will last for a limited number of weeks, brief engagements being allotted to the leading cities. Her repertoire includes "Magda," "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" and "The Notorious Mrs. Elphinstone," problem dramas; "Maritana," from the Spanish; "Beyond Human Power" and "Tales and Melancholy." These will give to Mrs. Campbell full opportunity to display her art.

AUTHOR IN POLITICS.

Booth Tarkington to Enter the Field of Statesmanship.

When Booth Tarkington, the author, wrote "The Gentleman From Indiana" and followed it with "Beaucaire," there was much wonder among literary folk that the same man could produce works in such widely different styles. His classmates at Princeton, however, were not surprised, as in college he was always known as the most versatile man in his class.

Now Mr. Tarkington has prepared another surprise for his friends. He has announced that he will be a candidate for the legislature of Indiana. Booth Tarkington is a native of Indianapolis and is thirty-one years of age. He is an Indiana man through to the backbone and takes a lively interest in the welfare of his native state. His advent into politics will be watched with interest by his friends, who predict for him further honors in the field of statesmanship.

As an illustration of Tarkington's versatility it is related that when preparing for Princeton at Purdue university he one evening amused a crowd of students by his skill with the piano, followed by playing the guitar, after which he composed college songs. He finished the performance by drawing pictures.

RICH IN RHETORIC.

No Plain, Unvarnished
Talk Was Shaffer's.

THE WAYS OF THE EXHORTER.

The President of the Amalgamated, for Years a Minister of the Gospel, Grows Fiery and Eloquent, Like the Old-Time Revivalist, in His Address to the Workingmen of Massillon and Vicinity—Addresses Also by J. F. Ward and Mayor Wise.

No plain, unvarnished talk, such as the talks of labor leaders are popularly supposed to be, was that of Theodore J. Shaffer, of Pittsburg, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, delivered before a large gathering of Massillon, Canton, New Philadelphia and Canal Dover steel workers and workmen generally, at the Trades and Labor Assembly hall, Saturday evening. It was such an effort as preachers and politicians sometimes make—many a rhetorical flourish, many an oratorical flight and never a grammatical slip. There were times when the language seemed extravagant, when the force of the argument would have been greater if the phrases had been simpler, but, on the whole, the address, albeit a bit rambling, considered from a literary standpoint, was the finest thing of the kind ever delivered in Massillon by a man connected with the labor movement.

There was nothing sensational about Mr. Shaffer's remarks. He condemned but little, and he ranted not at all. Self-education; the extension of trades-unionism; the instilling of its principles into the minds of the rising generation; and the converting of the skeptical; the establishment of a higher plane of morality; a better observance of the golden rule—these were the points on which Mr. Shaffer talked most. He made some references to the heavenly power, and he quoted from the Bible, for Mr. Shaffer for years was a Methodist Episcopal minister, and he knows about such things. In his most fiery moments, there was something strongly suggestive of the old-time Methodist exhorter about the speaker.

Mr. Shaffer made only passing reference to the late steel strike. He did not discuss any of the sensational questions which have come as an outgrowth of that struggle. He expressed some embarrassment because of the presence of many persons other than steel workers in the audience, and gave that fact as his excuse for not devoting more attention to Amalgamated matters.

"The trades-union," said Mr. Shaffer, "with its importance and progressiveness, as presented today, is a powerful agent in the settling of all questions that agitate not only commercial and industrial circles, but all society as well. There has never been a time when trades-unionism has been so powerful and influential as at present."

"Why?" demanded a voice in the audience.

"Well, now, my friend," replied Mr. Shaffer, "I am not conducting a catechetical class. Probably, however, the existence of the trusts may in some measure answer your question. The unification and the combination of the interests of the people who employ render necessary a similar unification of the interests of the people who are employed."

Mr. Shaffer said that today is found the unusual spectacle presented of the churchman and the politician patting the labor leader on the shoulder and giving him a place among them. He said there was a time when these conditions did not exist. In the past it was frequently necessary to conceal the fact that men were organized from the employers as well as from certain fellow employees. In those days, he remarked, the right of labor to organize was not recognized. Organization was regarded as improper and unlawful and all efforts in that direction should be frowned upon. There are still some people who claim that workingmen have no right to organize. "I am profoundly sorry to be compelled to asseverate here," said he, "that there are workingmen who join with the tyrannical employer in declaring that labor has no right to organize. Last week I had business in Youngstown. There I met a man—that is, he looked like a man, dressed like a man and talked, with his mouth, like a man. To my surprise this individual enunciated the idea that the man who invests his capital, installs the machinery, owns the plant, has the right to dictate what pay his employees shall receive and how many hours they shall work. I cannot understand the toiler who will hold to an opinion of this kind."

Mr. Shaffer went into the animal and vegetable kingdom to find his proofs of the right of labor to organize, explaining the constituency of the rock, the hill and other things. He referred to the family as "a little amalgamated association." If it is right that the church and state should be organized and maintained, then it is likewise right for labor so to do. Then he spoke of the organizations of lawyers, doctors and ministers, all for the same object as the organization of the workingmen. Investors of capital and employers are organized perfectly and compactly, he said, and labor must be a perfectly and compactly organized to defend its rights.

He said it is not a good business policy for a workingman to refuse to pay money into his organization. He declared that the dues of the Amalgamated, though regarded as high already, are still too low.

Mr. Shaffer said that he had been in hot water ever since his election to the presidency of the association. He spoke of the remark frequently made, "Shaffer is not a fighter." He opined that the makers of these remarks doubtless thought that the head of the organization should be a military man, and should go about with a chip on his shoulder looking for a fight. Business methods, he said, have accomplished the best that has come to labor in recent years. He said it is to the advantage of the employer to pay high wages, as the foundation of intercourse between employer and employee is the pay of the purchaser. Unless the workingman is well paid he cannot be a purchaser, and if he is not a purchaser there will be none. He said that the Republic Iron and Steel Company was one of the first employers of labor to recognize the advantage of high wages being paid its employees.

Labor organizations, he said, are training the employers of labor. The National Civic Federation, he looks upon as a step in the right direction of securing for the laborer his just share of the wealth he produces. God, grant, said he, that there come from this organization those blessings as shall make the workingmen and their children what the people of this nation should be.

The followers of no craft get a fair share of the product of their labor, he said. He declared that steel workers who make $5 or more a day have no more at the end of a year than the common laborer, because they cannot work every day. He declared that the fundamental principle of trades-unionism is protection, and he sought to impress his hearers with the importance of all endeavoring to strengthen the organization to which they belong.

Mr. Shaffer's peroration was particularly brilliant and impassioned. He appealed to the toilers never to allow their energies to lag or their interest to diminish till by self-organization and education, and by the organization and the education of the rising generation they shall bring about an equality of social position and the establishment of the true brotherhood of man.

"Let us move forward," said he, "never faltering, never hesitating, never halting, never giving up, but with our eye fixed upon the distant desirable object continue onward till we shall die."

REMARKS OF MR. WARD.

John F. Ward, of Youngstown, vice president of the sixth district of the Amalgamated, and Lawrence Kelly, of New Philadelphia, deputy vice president, were also present. Mr. Ward made a brief address. He declared that but for the union the workingmen of this country would be in a deplorable condition.

"It is a well known fact," said he, "we cannot only assist each other in our own cities, but assist each other all over this broad land. If we were left alone, we would be hopelessly at the mercy of our employers. I would decide to ask so much for my labor, some other person would offer to do the same labor for less. There would be no uniformity and wages would be ground down till a living would scarcely be obtainable for the toiler. It is every workingman's duty to himself and his family that he belong to a labor organization. What would become of our homes, our families, if it were not for the union? It is only by hard talking and hard fighting that we have secured what we now have."

MAYOR WISE SPEAKS.

Mayor Wise made a few remarks, congratulating local labor on the progress it has made, and advocating self-education.

THEY WHO GAVE IT.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Massillon lodge of the Amalgamated Association. Invitations had been sent out to representatives of all the unions of other crafts. Refreshments were served continually but without interrupting the exercises. Besides the speeches there were vocal solos by Thomas Murphy, David Vaughn, Mayor Wise, John G. Davis and members of the Canal Dover party; photographic selections, buck and wing dancing by Fred Beck, Walter Burke and Thomas Richards; selections by the Riverside Mandolin Club, and violin and piano solos. I Lewis Adrian, chairman of the committee in charge of the meet, presided. Others of the committee are Alfred Montague, Joseph Schott, Thomas Dunn, James Lloyd and Robert Featheringham.

A UNION AT CANTON.

Messrs. Shaffer, Ward and Kelly came to this city from Canton, where they organized another local of the Amalgamated. Mr. Shaffer returned to Pittsburg Saturday night. Messrs. Kelly and Ward remained over night.

COURT IN SESSION.

Judge McCarty Instructs
the Grand Jurors.

BUT FEW CASES TO CONSIDER

Banquet in Honor of Judge McCarty, Whose Term Expires Next Month—Sheriff McKinney Assumes Office at Noon Today.

Canton, O., Jan. 6.—The January term of common pleas court convened Monday morning. After enjoying the holiday vacation intervening between the closing of the September term and the opening of the January term, Judges T. T. McCarty and R. S. Ambler occupied their respective benches in court rooms Nos. 1 and 2. As is usual with the opening of court and on Monday forenoon, the hearing of motions and demurrers, largely of minor import, occupied their attention during the morning session. The grand jury for the January term was empaneled by Judge McCarty at 10 o'clock. For the second time in the last six years every member of the grand jury summoned was in attendance and there was no necessity of summoning outsiders in order to complete the panel of fifteen grand jurors. Judge McCarty carefully instructed the jurors as to their duties and as to the character of the cases that might come up for their consideration and as to the requirements in bringing in indictments. The jurors were also instructed in the law requiring absolute secrecy as to the proceedings during adjournments of the session. The grand jurors then proceeded to the jury room to begin their deliberations under the directions of Prosecuting Attorney Robert H. Day.

Prosecuting Attorney Day in speaking of the work of the grand jury said: "The indications are that it will be a short session. At present I know of but about fifteen cases to come up for consideration. All of them are comparatively of minor importance. There will be nothing developed in past murder cases that I know of at present."

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Stark County Law Library Association, was held in the library rooms in the court house at 10 o'clock Monday morning. There was a large attendance of attorneys. Judge I. H. Taylor was chosen chairman of the meeting and C. S. McDowell was made secretary. Seven trustees were elected for the ensuing year as follows: Isaac H. Taylor, James Sterling, A. M. McCarty, T. P. Turner, W. H. Smith, of Canton, Otto E. Young, of Massillon, and D. E. Rogers, of Alliance. Attorney H. F. Ake, of Canton, was re-elected secretary and treasurer of the association. The trustees will meet next Monday morning in the library rooms for the purpose of organization.

A banquet will be tendered Judge T. T. McCarty and his successor, Judge-elect Henry W. Harter, in the immediate future by the members of the Stark county bar. The banquet was decided upon at the meeting of the Law Library Association Monday morning. A committee of five, authorized to make all arrangements and to appoint sub-committees, was appointed as follows: Judge J. P. Fawcett, chairman; Austin Lynch, Judge R. S. Ambler, Eugene Willison, of Massillon, and D. E. Rogers, of Alliance. Judge McCarty retires February 9, after occupying the bench ten years.

Sheriff Frank McKinney assumed his duties at noon Monday. Sheriff McKinney announces that he will retain Deputy Sheriff W. L. Crubaugh and also Deputy Sheriff Harvey Zaiser.

Karl's Clover Root Tea purifies the Blood

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work. Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail. A MINE FATALITY.

John Pharos Killed in Pocock Mine No. 4.

CRUSHED UNDER TONS OF ROCK.

Roof Dropped Without Any Warning Whatever—The Victim Was an Italian, and Had Worked in the Mine but a Short Time.

John Pharos, a miner, employed by the Pocock Coal Company in mine No. 4, on the "Michael Culler farm, near Elton, was instantly killed by being caught under a fall of rock, at noon Tuesday. He, with a companion, was engaged in drawing pillars when a stone which weighed about ten tons, without any warning whatever, fell. Hoisting jacks from a neighboring mine were brought, and after two hours work the dead man was removed from under the stone. The body was taken to Elton, where he made his home.

Pharos, better known among his fellow workmen as "John the Baptist," was a native of Italy, and had been employed in the mine but a short time. He was 35 years of age and unmarried. All his relatives, except one sister, live in Italy.

His companion, another Italian, had just stepped from under the rock to a tool chest near when the accident occurred.

OBITUARY.

MISS ELIZABETH HENLINE.
Dalton, Jan. 7.—Miss Elizabeth Henline, aged 84 years, died Sunday. Funeral services were held today. Miss Henline never married. She enjoyed good health till shortly before death, and, though she lived alone, she was not at all a recluse, but being of an amiable disposition, enjoyed society.

EDWARD STEESE.
A long distance telephone message conveyed the sad news of the death of Edward Steese, of Brookline, Mass., to Massillon relatives on Monday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steese and Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Baldwin left for Brookline early Tuesday morning. The funeral will probably take place on Thursday. The exact cause of Mr. Steese's death is yet unknown. He had been ill for three weeks. On Sunday the physicians in attendance considered his condition hopeful.

Mr. Steese was a son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Isaac Steese of this city. He was born in New Philadelphia in 1844, came to Massillon with his parents when about three years of age and lived here until his marriage to Miss Eleanor Sturtevant, of Boston. His children are Mrs. Gertrude White, of Brookline, and Dr. Edward Steese, of New York.

Beat Out of an Increase of His Pension.

A Mexican war veteran and prominent editor writes, "Seeing the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, I am reminded that as a soldier in Mexico in '47 and '48, I contracted Mexican diarrhoea and this remedy has kept me from getting an increase in my pension for on every renewal a dose of it restores me." It is unequalled as a quick cure for diarrhoea and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by E. S. Craig, Z. T. Baltzly and Rider & Snyder.

"An attack of pneumonia left me with muscular rheumatism, headache, and pains that seemed to be all over me. I was scarcely able to move for about a month when I decided to give Dr. Miles' Pain Pills

Guaranteed Satisfactory for One Year.

DR. CLOUSE is one of the most successful oculists in the state, who understands the eye and its diseases, and by his special instruments can fit you when others fail, with the best of glasses at the least cost.

REMEMBER it pays to have one who fully understands the eye and its diseases to properly fit you before serious harm has been done by poorly fitted glasses, as treatment is often required instead of glasses.

LOOK HERE! Farmer and Teamster.

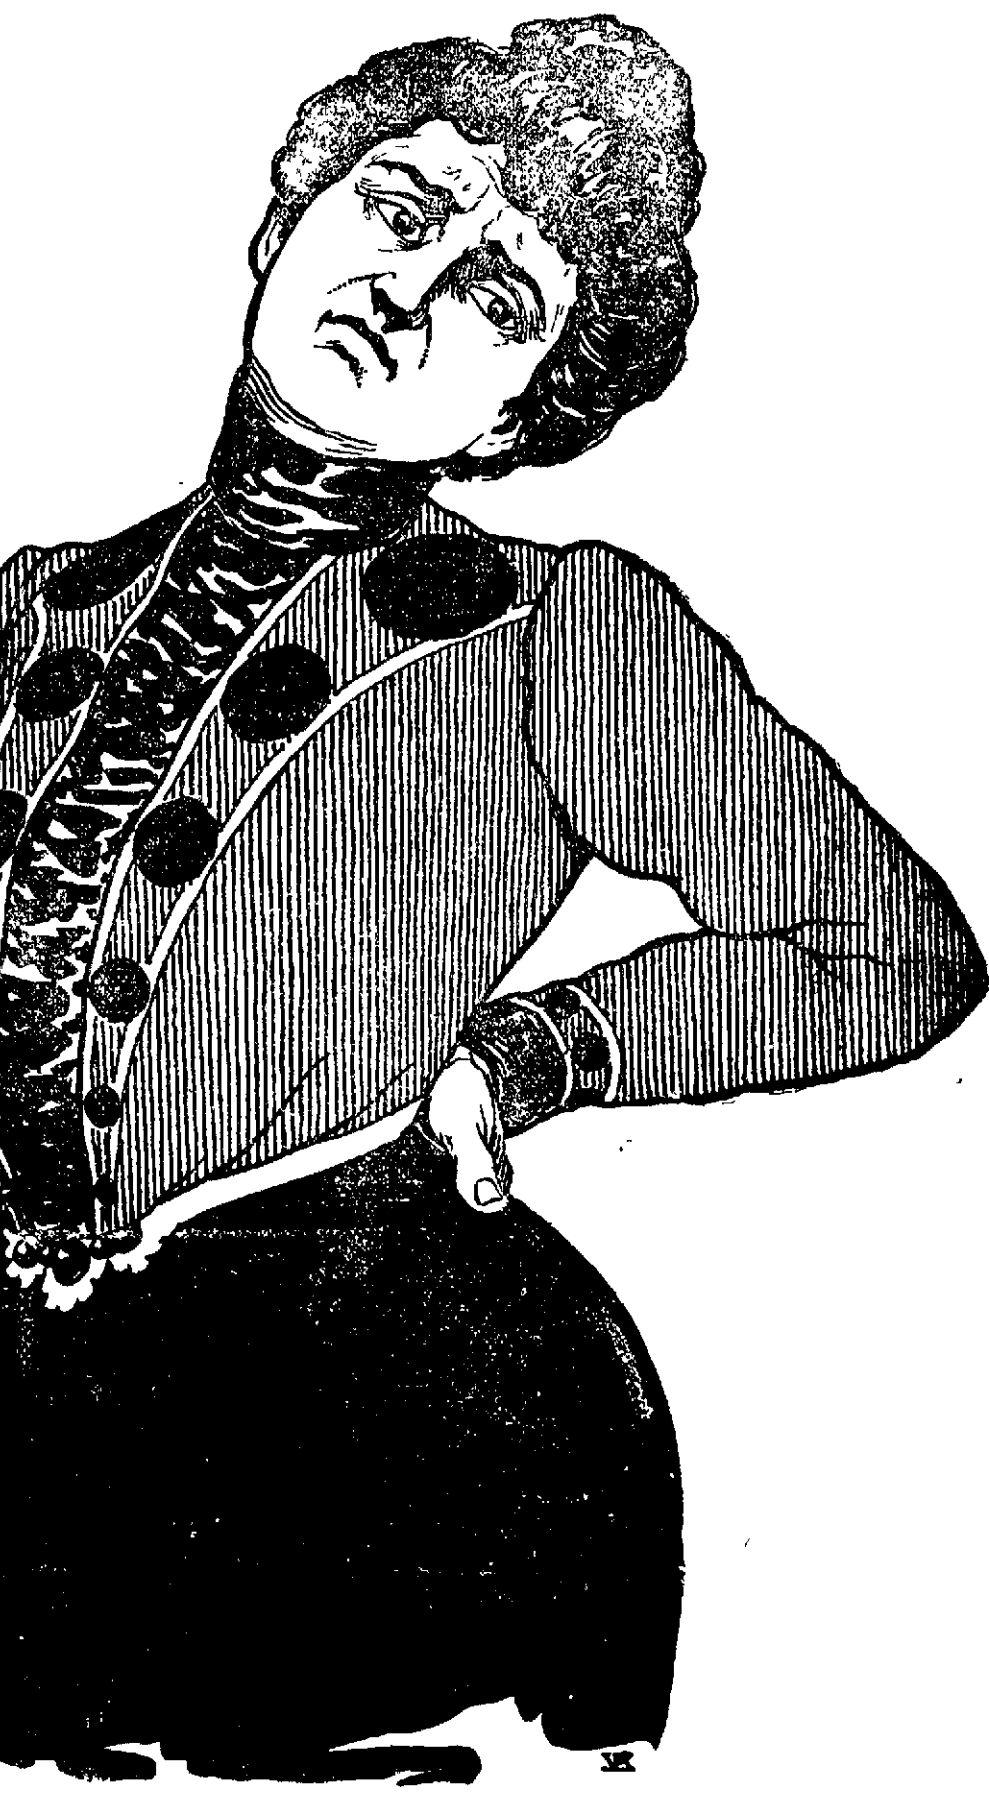

Did you ever see anything so handy as the "Handy Endgate?" All you need to do to open this endgate is to take hold of the handle marked "H" and pull toward you and it will open as if by magic, forming a shoveling board, which will support a half ton if desired. To close it you just push it forward, and it will fasten itself.

Whether shut or open the box can never spread. It is always held firm. There are no endgate rods to loosen. No endgate to take out and let lay. No side braces needed. No boot necessary. When building a new box you save the cost of endgate, endgate rods, plates, cleats, box straps, side braces, and boot, and by deducting this cost from the cost of our "Handy Endgate" your box will cost you but a trifle more to have one put on.

You cannot afford to be without one, even though you put it on your old box. No wagon is complete without it, for you know it has been a long-felt want, but it has at last been invented, for your good, and for the benefit of all who have any use for a wagon. It will save you from five to ten minutes on every load of corn or coal you may haul. The time saved by the use of the "Handy Endgate" will soon pay the cost of it. We solicit your order and will guarantee it to give the best of satisfaction or money refunded.

Write for terms and prices. Agents wanted. We thank you in advance for your order. Manufactured by
